Clubhouse restaurant parma heights

Meet with a group of former co-workers, who are all mostly retired, just to enjoy a meal together and relive the old days. The club house was proposed as the location was convenient for all concerned. Old place, but clean. Bar in front with pub tables, arrows, jock box, etc. and dining room at the back. The menu is extensive, with 2 specialoffers that day, but it seems to be known for its paprika and salads. In fact, there were about 20 of us and people who asked for salads and paprika raving about their choices. I ordered a hamburger and it was ok. I judge the bar/restaurant of the hamburgers they serve, and that wasn't something special - it didn't appear to be newly made, but a frozen patty received on the grill. Meat didn't have much flavor like fresh ground and the shape of the burger should be. I mean, how hard it is to put a class burger -- especially in a bar. However, I will say again, everyone was happy or very happy with the meals and it seems that paprikash and specialty authorities were excellent. I just chose the wrong item from the list.
